

Strategies to Teach Your Students About Neurodiversity

Curriculum

Use books, videos, and guest speakers to introduce students to the concept of neurodiversity. Share stories of successful neurodivergent individuals to inspire and educate.

Dialogue

Create a safe space for students to ask questions and share their experiences. Normalize conversations about learning differences and challenges.

Model

Show students how to support their peers by modeling inclusive behaviors.

Use UDL

Design lessons that offer multiple ways to engage, learn, and demonstrate understanding

Celebrate

Highlight the unique strengths of all students, especially those who are neurodivergent. Help students see that everyone brings something valuable to the table.

Be part of the ripple effect of inclusion!
